Scottish Indexes Conference XIX

14 January 2023

Thank you for joining us at the January Scottish Indexes Conference. Once again you put us to work with your excellent questions. I have done my best to compile all the excellent information which was shared as well as links to presenters' websites.

Thank you to everyone who joined us yesterday, we hope you can join us again in April. Emma has started work on a new presentation looking at the history of Scottish prisons and punishment in Scotland.

We'll announce more presenters soon but make sure to subscribe to our newsletter so you don't miss any big news. You can subscribe here on Hubspot.

There was a question regarding when married women began teaching. We still don't have a conclusive answer to this but we have found that the Education \(Scotland\) Act 1945 stated: 'No woman shall be disqualified for employment as a teacher in any school, junior college or other educational establishment under the management of an education authority or be dismissed from such employment by reason only of marriage.'

It seems however that prior to the Education \(Scotland\) Act 1945 married women were teaching. HANSARD (HL Deb 06 June 1945 vol 136 cc435-44) quotes the Secretary of State for Scotland as saying; "During the war, the schools have been able to carry on, in spite of depleted staffs, because teachers who in normal circumstances would have retired have been willing to continue at their posts, and a substantial number of married women teachers have returned to the schools. With the end of the war in Europe, many of these teachers will no doubt be thinking of giving up their wartime work, and their desire to do so must be accepted with full sympathy and understanding. I sincerely trust, however, that many will feel able to remain in the schools for a little longer so as to tide us over the period until teachers who are serving in the Forces are able to return, and until the flow of new entrants begins to reach the schools."

It would certainly be an interesting subject to research further and if anyone is able to do so please do let us know. Further reading of HANSARD and searching JSTOR may illuminate the subject.

During the presentation, Irene mentioned the 'Virtual Mitchell' website which gives free access to photographs featuring Glasgow's buildings and streets as well as people going about their daily lives. It's a great place to look for photographs of schools. Although you are unlikely to find a photo of your ancestor you may see a group of children at school.

Here are a few which caught my eye:

Camlachie Primary School (1878)

Abbotsford Public School: interior (domestic science) 1916.

London Rd Public School: interior (general teaching) 1916.

Art class, 1955

North Kelvinside Public School 1916

Sacred Heart School, class photograph, Bridgeton, 1909

Kay Public School for handicapped children, horse-drawn van lifting pupils, Cowcaddens, 1911

No 2 Committee of Glasgow Juvenile Delinquency Board at Green St Industrial School; a board official presenting a mother and 3 children to other officials (named), Green St, 1886.

If you are looking for School records outwith Glasgow you may find the Scottish Archive Network's online catalogue a good place to start. This project aimed to revolutionise access to Scotland's archives by providing a single electronic catalogue to the holdings of more than 50 Scottish archives. Work is online to replace the catalogue but it is still a good place to start: <https://catalogue.nrscotland.gov.uk/scancatalogue/welcome.aspx>. Do be aware, however, that not all archives are included and not all entities have a high level of detail. If you don't find anything, contact the archive that now covers the area where your ancestors lived. As Irene explained, there have been a lot of changes, but archivists will point you in the right direction.

If you are going to visit Glasgow City Archives, start planning as early as possible; in fact, this is true of any archive. Before you visit you want to have all your research in order and know what you want to consult. You need to book to visit some archives and many need time to retrieve records from off-site. By giving yourself and the archive as much time as possible you will have more success in tracing those elusive ancestors.

by Margaret Fox

Twitter: @mf6060

Email: mf6060@gmail.com

Margaret is the archivist at Traquair House, Scotland's oldest inhabited house.

Once again Margaret prepared an excellent and informative presentation. As genealogists, we need to 'crack the code' and read historical records. From Kirk session records, wills and a vast multitude of other records we need to sharpen our skills.

Margaret has kindly prepared a handout which you can access here. This includes the sample secretary hand alphabet as well as a list of resources that can help you develop your skills.

Margaret highlights the excellent Scottish Handwriting website www.scottishhandwriting.com. I think this is particularly helpful for beginners. There are free tutorials and a series of posers so that you can test your skills.

Another suggestion was to practice! Older Kirk Session records are great for this as the contain pages and pages of old Scottish handwriting. You can access these for free on ScotlandsPeople.

Tessa has also kindly agreed that we can make the presentation available on our website. When I get a chance I will update our Census in Scotland Learning Zone and add the presentation video to this page as well as to our 'past conferences' page.

You may also find the 1921 Census research guide on the NRS website very helpful; as they say, if all else fails read the instructions!

There was also a question about the 1939 register: why can't we access it as we can in England and Wales? Here on the NRS website, they explain the link between the 1939 register and the National Health Service Central Register (NHSCR). It is possible to order an extract from the 1939 register but the NRS say, "it is only possible to provide limited information on the named individual; namely their address in 1939, marital status, age and occupation." Here is a link to the page on the NRS website that explains how to order an extract.

'The Real Brigadoon Villages'

by Andrew Armstrong

Website: relativelyscottish.com

Facebook: @relativelyscottish

Andrew took his lifelong hobby of genealogy to the next level with a Postgraduate Diploma in Genealogical, Palaeographic and Heraldic Studies from the University of Strathclyde in 2012. He has been running Relatively Scottish, a genealogy business based in the Scottish Borders, since 2015. He specialises in the south of Scotland – Dumfries, Galloway and the Borders. His own ancestry includes the infamous Border Reivers of the 16th century.

Andrew took a look at a number of Scottish villages which just disappeared. What happened to the often close-knit communities within? How can these be researched? There are examples all over Scotland - these include mining villages, villages which succumbed to the weather, and even villages which were spoiling the look of the local landowner's estate. And these lost places have left a surprising human legacy far beyond their modest sizes.

Andrew has kindly prepared a handout which can be downloaded here.

Caithness Family History Society was formed in September 1999 by a small group of enthusiasts and has already grown to around 250 members worldwide. Our aim is to promote an interest in genealogy and, wherever we can, to help others trace their roots – especially families originating from Caithness.

Anglo-Scottish Family History Society

Website - angloscots.mlfhs.org.uk

The Anglo-Scottish FHS was formed in 1982 by members of the Manchester & Lancashire Family History Society (M&LFHS) to assist in tracing their links back to Scottish origins. We have details of baptisms and communion rolls from Presbyterian churches in Manchester from 1802 to 1970 in our members area. More images are included in the DVD from our online shop. We also have a Scottish Marriage index, giving details of Scots who married overseas. This index is freely available to search. We would also welcome any new information that researchers would care to contribute to the index.

We have recently revamped our website www.fifefhs.org and as well as an extensive members area including a Record Archive, Journal Archive, Members Forum and free access to the Pre 1855 Fife

Death Index (over 250,000 deaths) we have an online shop www.fifefhs.org/shop/ There are 25 digital publications available to purchase as downloads. These include pre 1855 Baptisms from non establishment churches, Monumental Inscriptions and our Fife Shopkeepers and Traders Directory 1820-1870.

Central Scotland Family History Society

Website: www.csfhs.org.uk

The Central Scotland Family History Society covers the old counties of Clackmannanshire, Stirlingshire and West Perthshire, plus the parishes of Bo'ness and Carriden in West Lothian.

Meetings are held monthly on the 2nd Wednesday from October to May. For the 2022 – 2023 session, we are trying out a mix of meetings - four in-person afternoon meetings and four evening meetings on Zoom from December to March.

There is a monthly “drop-in” Session at St Ninian’s Library in Stirling, when we introduce the fascination of genealogy to new researchers starting out on their journey, and offer advice to anyone suffering from ‘brick wall’ syndrome.

We produce a Journal twice a year, and since lockdown the committee has introduced a monthly newsletter, ‘Share your Story’, to keep members feeling connected to the Society.

We have a full list of our own publications, many of which are now available as pdf downloads – see our website for details of price and ordering.
